

BIG PARADE TO-NIGHT

Opening Ceremonies of the Great Carnival of Song.

Feared that President Cleveland Will Not Be Present.

Philadelphia Six Hundred Arrived This Morning.

All arrangements have been completed for the torch-light parade of the National Saengerfest to-night.

The only drawback is the doubt concerning President Cleveland's presence. He accepted the invitation conditionally, and General Manager Morrissey still has hope that he will be on hand, though Proprietor O. P. Breen, of the Victoria, where the Presidential party usually puts up, is equally as sure that he will not be here.

The parade will form on Second street at Second avenue and will move up Second avenue to Fourteenth street, to Fourth avenue, to Twenty-sixth street, passing through the triumphal arch at Twenty-sixth street and Madison avenue, to Fifth avenue, to Fifty-first street, where it will disband. Gov. Flower, Mayor Gilroy and others will view it from the Victoria Hotel.

It is expected that 200 people will march. The parade will be headed by a band of mounted police, followed by gentlemen from the various academies, dressed in Alpine costumes. The visiting societies will be escorted by the local organization. There will be twenty bands of music.

One of the principal features of the parade will be the float of Music and Song, on which will be presented famous hymns and choruses of Wagner's compositions.

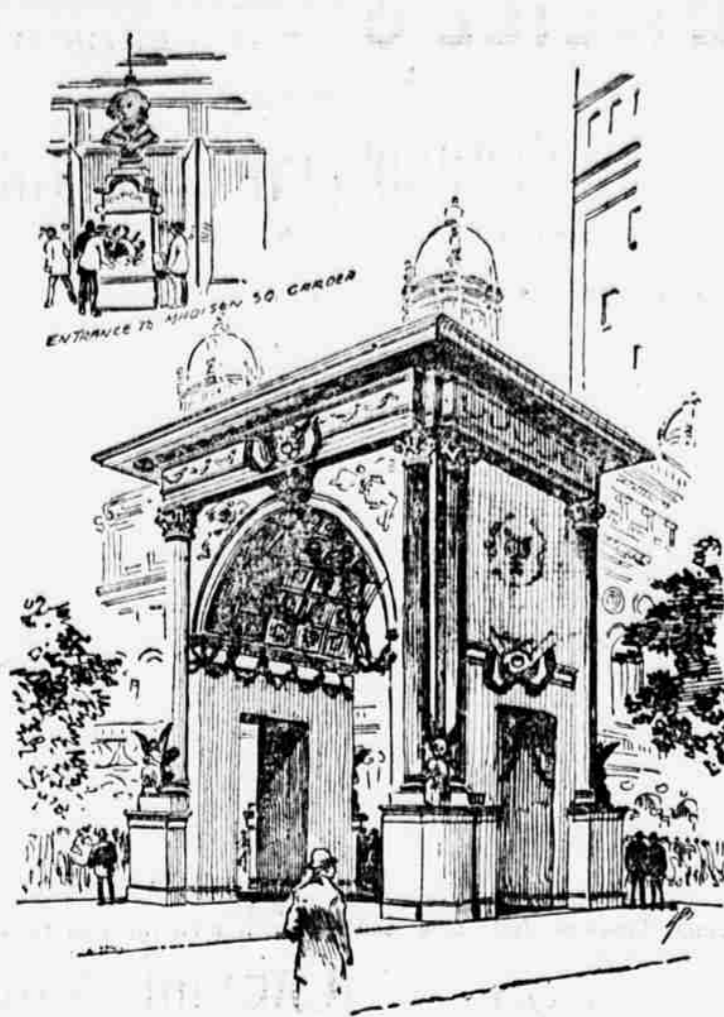

Handel will be represented by a mammoth organ, with living pictures of Germania and Liberty. At the base will be representatives of various countries, with the musical instruments characteristic of their nationality.

The finishing touches to the triumphal arch at Madison avenue and Twenty-sixth street were put on this morning, and by noon thousands of people had gone out of their way to view the architectural beauties of the temporary structure.

The Maennerchor Society of Philadelphia arrived this morning over the Pennsylvania road. Col. Hain, of the Elevated road, had a special train for them at the Cortlandt street station, which whirled them down to the Battery, where they were run on to the Third avenue tracks and taken to the Twenty-sixth street station. They were welcomed by a reception committee, who escorted them to Germania Hall, where refreshments were served. They numbered 600 in all, and will be augmented this afternoon by the Pennsylvania societies, which will bring the number up to 1,200.

The Madison Square Garden presented an animated scene this morning. In one part of the big building an orchestra of a hundred instruments was rehearsing under the direction of Prof. Von Stucken, while a multitude of carpenters and decorators accompanied them with hammers in transforming the large amphitheatre into a place of beauty.

The sides of the building bear festoons of the Saengerfest and portraits of famous composers in the centre. Gov. Hogg and staff, of Texas, comprising forty in all, arrived shortly before noon from Albany, and were met at the Grand Central depot by Col. A. B. de Freese, who escorted them to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, which will be their headquarters during their stay.

THE SAENGERFEST TRIUMPHAL ARCH.
thrown open to the visitors, each club taking care of two or three societies. The majority of the out-of-town organizations are not expected until tomorrow morning, when the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis and other Western organizations will arrive. A full rehearsal will take place tomorrow morning, and the first concert in the evening.

DIED AFTER A SPREE.
McNichol Had a Large Bruise on the Back of His Head.
Patrick McNichol, aged twenty-six years, died yesterday at Steel's Hotel, 315 Greenwich street, without an attending physician. He had been drinking the past few days and was suffering from a large bruise on the back of his head, which was dressed at the Chambers Street Hospital.

A DREAMLAND ALARM

In Answering It Fireman Harris Fell Down the Pole Hole.

Somnambulist Feat Which Ended in a Fractured Skull.

It Is Thought He Tried to Slide Down the Pole While Asleep.

George T. E. Harris, a fireman attached to Engine Company No. 8, in East Fifty-first street, fell through the pole hole at the engine-house at 2:15 o'clock this morning and sustained a fracture of the skull.

The accident was unaccountable, except upon the theory of somnambulism. Harris is twenty-eight years old, steady and in good health. Like many of the firemen these hot nights, he slept in the back yard of the station instead of in his bed in the dormitory upstairs.

At about 1:30 this morning an alarm called the ten firemen and two officers of No. 8 to their posts. Harris, who is the driver of the engine, ran in from the yard and jumped into his seat. As the fire was not in that district and no supplementary alarms came in, the horses were hitched and the men returned to their beds.

Harris went back to his sleeping-place in the yard, but must have soon abandoned it and climbed the stairs to his bed. He was not observed, however, until the watchman at the front of the house heard the fall of a heavy object at the rear. He ran back and found Harris lying at the foot of the pole by which the men slide down to the first floor. The watchman called for help, and the whole force, thinking it a still alarm, ran down.

Harris was unconscious and bleeding from a cut in the back of the head. Ineffective efforts were made to get a neighboring doctor, and a Flower Hospital ambulance was then summoned. The young surgeon said that Harris's skull was fractured at the base. The injured man was taken to the hospital.

Assistant Foreman Jones, of No. 8, told an "Evening World" reporter that he thought Harris must have been dreaming. Firemen's sleep is so broken up, and they are roused with such suddenness to violent activity from the deepest slumber, that they are subject to mental freaks in their sleep. Jones said that he had often awakened to find himself in his boots and trousers rushing to his post when there was no alarm whatever.

Harris evidently lay down upon his bed, as it was found disturbed, and, probably dreamed of an alarm, and, trying to answer it, fell through the hole. He was partly dressed when found.

The report at the hospital is that he is seriously but not fatally injured.

MET A HORRIBLE DEATH.

The Fate of Cook Colgate, of the Carlin Party, Is Settled.

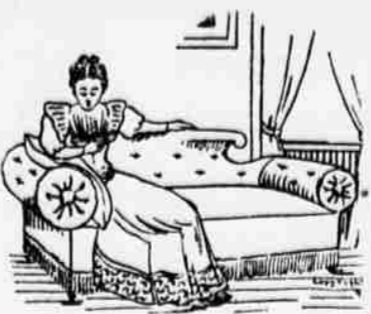

(By Associated Press.)

MISSOULA, Mon., June 22.—The expedition which left Missoula May 21 in search of the body of George Colgate, the cook of the Carlin party, abandoned by that party last fall in the Big Clearwater country, one of the wildest forests in the Northwest, has just returned.

The body of Colgate was not found, but sufficient evidence was discovered to justify the conclusion that he died a horrible death. On the limb of the tree which projected into the eddy of the middle fork of Clearwater River was found one sleeve caught under a huge boulder. The indications were that the body was washed down stream about half a mile from where the unfortunate man was abandoned, and was caught in the eddy.

A sleeve caught in a limb of a tree, and the current being intensely rapid, the arm was torn from the body and remained there.

Gains Admits Having Made Way with the Funds.

Julius B. Gains, twenty-seven years old, of 129 Eighth avenue, a collector and salesman for Albert J. Wickens, of 261 Broome street, a brush manufacturer, was charged in the Tombs Police Court to-day with larceny and was held in $500 bail for trial.

The specific charge is that May 9 he appropriated to his own use $4.00. Mr. Wickens thinks he has robbed him of between $300 and $400. Gains admitted his guilt.

HOPE FOR THE PLYMOUTH.

A Big Derrick Trying to Bring the Stranded Boat to a Level.

(By Associated Press.)

NEWPORT, June 22.—The great 130-ton steam derrick of the Chapman Wrecking Company is to-day at work trying to float the Fall River line steamer Plymouth. This gigantic lifting machine is expected to elevate the port side of the huge hull to its normal position, and it is hoped that this clear of the rock-reefs that pierce her outer skin, the steamer may be carried into deep water.

Delegates Start for Denver.

There will be no special train for the New York and New England delegates to Denver to attend the Republican League National Convention to be held there. The delegates will go in separate parties on various trains. Many of them left the Grand Central Depot at 1 P. M. to-day for Chicago, and after attending a meeting of the League there will go in a body to Denver.
